

A HACK-NEYED THEME.

The Comedy of "Much Ado About Nothing" Over Again.

THE MERRY WAR ENDS AS MERRILY

As it Went On, and Instead of One Cab Stand the Town Has a Dozen. Fourteenth Street Disappointed by Her Failure to Secure the Monopoly, After All the Racket.

The merry war over the location of the cab stand seems to have settled itself, under Mr. Wiedebush's amendment to the ordinance, a little different from what everybody expected. There was such strenuous opposition to the cabs on Market street that it was supposed the action of the Council in banishing them to Fourteenth would result in livening up that staid thoroughfare. To the general surprise yesterday, but one hack was on Fourteenth street, and that close to Market. Jack Sheppard was inclined to kick because he could not get them all, and other Fourteenth street people felt bitterly disappointed because that boulevard did not have the monopoly looked for.

The amended ordinance gave any person the right to establish a little cab stand in front of his place of business. Under this clause Meder Bros. gave Burns & Church the right to occupy their old stand. William Ashworth gave Handlan's hacks their old stalling ground. One hack was given a place on Market street in front of the McLean hotel. Sheppard had one in front of his door, Charles Hill one, Bader & Mauer one. Robert Luke had his two in front of his own place. The fact is that the omnibus amendment to the ordinance made a sort of general hackstand of the city streets. Where was one stand, occupying a block, are twelve, spread over two squares, and all the returns are not yet in.

The hack war was a matter of general comment about town. People who never ride in cabs were just as interested as people who do frequently. For some reason the INTELLIGENCER did not receive any calls for hacks, as it did the night before. The Register, even, did not order one. It is suggested that hereafter when the gentlemen on that paper telephone orders they be more specific, and say which of the two streets the hack is wanted on, so that the "local color" may be more pronounced.

It was reported yesterday that the board of public works had signified its intention to clean up the locality lately occupied by the cab stand at once. This came under the head of important, if true, but so far no sign of its truth is manifest.

The one hack on Fourteenth was so lonely yesterday that the driver spent most of his time asleep on his box. Even the horse was evidently homesick.

Hundreds of people walked from their places of employment to their meals yesterday, and none of them seemed to be in a bad humor over it—possibly because they have been used to walking home all alone.

HE CHANGED HIS MIND

And didn't Draw his Pistol—Ejected from the Park.

Shortly before the 6 o'clock motor left the Wheeling Park station last evening a young man was ejected from the grounds. He tried to get back through the gates, but was prevented by Special Officer Dunlap. The man persisted, and Dunlap insisted. The fellow became obstreperous, until finally the officer had to actually hold him to prevent him from going in. This made the chap mad, and hailing off he hit Dunlap. The latter struck back, as there was no other way to quiet his adversary, and knocked the fellow down. Up he jumped:

"You, I'll fix you," he cried, putting his hand to his hip pocket, with a motion to draw a revolver.

"Hold on there," yelled a friend, "Dunlap's got a pop himself, an' he may get it out and use it."

This scared the "fixer" and he walked down to the platform, wiping the dirt off his face.

As a matter of fact Officer Dunlap had made no attempt to get out a pistol, and the caution given the other fellow was probably dictated by the knowledge that most constables, officers and watchmen carry a shooting iron.

SECURELY HIDDEN.

Lieutenant Gaus Locates Some Alleged Stolen Property.

Yesterday morning at 5 o'clock a man named Grill, from West Alexander, stepped into police headquarters and told Lieutenant Gaus that he had been robbed of a pocketbook containing ten dollars, in a hotel on Market street. He had roused from a sound and refreshing sleep and found it missing. "What surprises me," said he, "is that the thief didn't take my watch and chain, which was hanging to my vest."

The lieutenant started out with him. "The only way I can identify the house," Grill remarked, as he trotted along, "is by a little piece of glass broken out of a window."

Grill sized up the houses as he went along, and stopped in front of Wharton's house, the old Rine House. The lieutenant and he walked up to the room, and found the pocket book, with the ten dollars, under the sheet. "Oh, yes," said Grill, "I remember now; I showed it under there for safe keeping."

Canoe Tourists Home.

George Wells and Will Lash, the two young men who made the run to Cincinnati in a canoe, have returned home. They went to Louisville on a steamboat, shipping the canoe home from Cincinnati, and then made quite a tour by rail. One of the boys says his face is so blistered by the sun that he cannot smile without cracking it.

A WONDERFUL HUSTLE

In the Finishing of the Main Street Stone Bridge.

IT RAPIDLY NEARS COMPLETION.

And Is Now in Use by the Street Cars and Foot Passengers—The Electric Railway Changed in the Night. The Brick Paving Being Pushed by Contractor Lemons.

After the work of finishing up the Main street stone bridge for use was begun it was pushed in a manner which shows that it could have been done several weeks ago if any effort had been made to have it done.

As narrated in yesterday's INTELLIGENCER, the electric railway laid on the bridge several days ago was connected with the old track at each end, and cut off from the track around over the temporary wooden bridge, this work being done Tuesday night, and occupying most of the night. After the cars stopped running Tuesday night the trolley wires were also changed from the old to the new bridge, and yesterday morning the cars ran for the first time over the new stone bridge. The ease and evenness with which they ride over the eighty-five pound rails on the bridge is a pleasant change, and strikes every person at once.

The work of laying the fire brick pavement was begun yesterday morning by Contractor George Lemons, and he hustled it so that by last evening half the west side of the bridge was paved. He expects to have the whole work completed by Friday night, and the bridge will be open for public use on Saturday, when the Labor Day parade will march over it.

There is a good deal of cleaning up necessary at both ends yet before vehicles can cross the bridge, but this certainly should be done by to-night. Foot passengers are already using the sidewalks, almost to the exclusion of the wooden bridge. The improvement in convenience is quite as great as the improvement in appearance.

Mayor Seabright deserves much credit for the way he assumed the pressure and pushed people up to complete their work in the past few days. Had he had charge long ago doubtless the work would not have dragged so.

THE SEASON OPENED.

An Auspicious Beginning of Mr. Rheinstrom's Management of the Opera House.

Last evening the theatrical season of 1892-93 opened under the most promising auspices at the Wheeling Opera House. It was the first performance under Mr. Alfred Rheinstrom's management, and he certainly had every reason to feel encouraged. The "standing room only" sign was out when the door was opened, and when the curtain went up the house was packed clear to the walls. The house has been somewhat brightened up, and several new faces greet patrons. Mr. Rheinstrom is assisted by Leon B. Stein in the box office, and Col. Ed Bruce' genial presence "on the door" was welcome. Prof. E. W. Spiel of course remains as musical director, and Will Richardson remains in charge of the stage.

Primrose & West's minstrels, an appropriate attraction, made the brilliant opening. The first part is dressed in Japanese garb, à la Mikado. The singing was good, most of the jests fresh and funny, and the comedians all right.

Of the specialties, Abach and Masand demonstrated their title to be called "the premier acrobats of the world." Billy Van "leads the van" for real amusement. Morris Cronin's act with tennis racquet and ball is graceful, and only too brief, while with Indian clubs there is apparently nothing he cannot do but swallow them, and one would not be safe to bet he could not do that till he saw Cronin try and fail. His act with three clubs is especially noteworthy. Johnson, Riano and Bentley, in "The Monkeys and the Farmer," furnished a fitting finale. Altogether the performance was as good as anybody need want to see.

CANINE HOP O' MY THUMBS.

Abandoned in the Wilds of Ohio Two Days, Return to Their Old Home.

Several months ago Mr. Charles E. Van Keuren, the Twelfth street hotel keeper, bought two trained dogs, as a driving team for his little son. The dogs contracted the disagreeable habit of lying down while in harness, and refusing to budge, so little Charley got tired of his team and drove it no longer. Three weeks ago Mr. Van Keuren loaned the dogs to the U. S. Terrier fishing club, which had its camp about six miles up the river. As soon as they arrived they were untied, and scampered home.

Last Sunday their owner gritted his teeth, and determined they should be lost. Hitching up the horse and buggy he drove out to Smithfield, Ohio, twenty-five miles from here, the dogs following all the way. Arrived at Smithfield he gave the dogs to two friends, living some distance apart in the town. The animals were tied, so as not to follow their master, and Mr. Van Keuren drove to Cadiz, O. He came back Tuesday night, and, as he drove up to the hotel, almost fainting, when Jack and Bill, the two lost dogs, gamboled about him, overjoyed to see their master.

Jack had returned Monday night, and Bill had reappeared Tuesday evening. Jack and Bill are two fine looking dogs, and are pleasant dumb companions, but are nuisances about the restaurant and hotel. Any person having a recipe of "How to lose dogs" would do well by calling on Mr. Van Keuren.

Harcourt Re-elected.

LONDON, August 24.—Sir William Vernon Harcourt was re-elected by an increased majority, receiving 6,508 votes, against 1,619 for farmer Atkinson. In the recent general election Sir William received 7,507 votes and his Conservative opponent 5,548. With the exception of Sir William Vernon Harcourt and Mr. John Morley, all the new ministers have been formally re-elected without opposition.

A Junior McKinley Bill.

HONOLULU, August 24.—A bill has passed the third reading and become a law which will greatly affect the trade between Hawaii and other countries, especially America. It is a sort of junior Hawaiian McKinley bill, and relates to the increased duty on various articles, many of which were "free by treaty" with the United States, or at least ad valorem duty.

QUIET AT COAL CREEK.

Gen. Carnes Vigorously Prosecuting the Miners—Regiment of Volunteers Raised in Nashville.

NASHVILLE, TENN., August 24.—The latest news from Coal Creek is that quiet prevails. No demonstrations were made to-day. Supplies and clothing are being rushed forward from this city to the soldiers, as their stay is indefinite, and especially since the indications are that the convicts will be returned to the mines in a few days. General Carnes, in the examination of the dispatches in the telegraph office at Coal Creek, has found many dispatches of a discriminating nature and throwing much light upon the conspiracy. Assistant Commissioner of Labor Alleman left Nashville yesterday. It is understood, in obedience to a request from General Carnes that he will be "wanted." Alleman says he will be able to show in any court that he has had no part in inciting the riots and attacks. He said he was going to Coal Creek to report to General Carnes. The Fourth Regiment of Volunteers was organized here last night. Col. Baxter Smith commanding, and will ask to be sworn in at once, subject to the call of the governor. No further trouble is feared before labor day, September 5, or unless the troops are removed from the valley.

A dispatch from Coal Creek says Squire Kincaid held court there yesterday, and several miners were held to court, while others were discharged. All obstacles to civil prosecution have been removed by appointing Brigadier General Carnes a deputy sheriff of Anderson county. State's Attorney Pickle is conducting the prosecution with plenty of assistance. Minors unable to give bail are brought there for safe keeping. Gen. Carnes says he expects no further trouble.

A company from Jackson, Tenn., arrived there last night. It is rumored that the governor of Kentucky has given permission for the troops to pursue fugitives across the Kentucky line and will co-operate in their capture.

The leading spirits of the mob that released the convicts at Inman are certain of a term in the penitentiary, as at the last session of the legislature a law was passed making it a felony in any manner interfere with the working of the convicts, the law having in special view such offenses as the mob at Inman were guilty of. The penalty is one to seven years in the penitentiary.

MURDERED AT NIGHT.

An Arkansas Miscreant Kills His Enemy's Wife While in Bed.

TEXARKANA, ARK., August 24.—The particulars of a dastardly murder, which was perpetrated Saturday night at Cameron, a small village on the Cotton Belt railway, fifteen miles north of here, have just reached here. Bad blood has existed for the past three years between Paschal Frazier and a Mr. Long and they have had frequent quarrels. On Saturday they had another dispute, during which Frazier made threats of violence upon Long. The latter went home and at the usual hour retired with his wife and children for the night, he with the oldest child, occupying one bed and the wife and two younger children occupying another bed in the same room. At about 11 o'clock five shots rang out. One struck Mrs. Long and went through her body, causing death in a few hours. At the inquest held Sunday enough testimony was brought forth to cause warrants to be issued for Frazier as the murderer and Coleman as an accomplice. The latter was arrested and says that Frazier did the shooting. Frazier has fled but it is not thought that he can escape the officers who are looking for him.
